

Workshop: Engaging Youth through Media & Technology

June 30, 2006

9:00am to 5:00pm

At Beyondmedia Education 7013 N. Glenwood Ave.

Continental breakfast and lunch will be provided.

RSVP by calling or emailing: Ana Mercado, ana@beyondmedia.org (773) 973-2280

Join other youth-serving and community-based organizations in a day-long interactive event designed to demonstrate how media tools can be used to engage youth in community problem solving. This FREE event will:

- Cover the basics of media literacy and the power/impact of media on youth in representing community issues.
- Inform participants about community and project-based curricula and its potential to engage youth on community issues.
- Demonstrate the importance of collaboration and using community media to strengthen youth civic engagement and organizing.
- Inform participants about opportunities for collaboration with youth multimedia organizations and public access groups.
- Illustrate the power of using video for storytelling.
- Provide tips on incorporating youth with disabilities into your project.

This workshop is aimed at staff from youth-serving organizations interested in incorporating media literacy, video skills, and/or community-based curricula into their programs.
